

The Donald and The Oz

Well if you look at today's news you'd think there might be a fine line between crazy and insane.

You've got a guy jumping out of an airplane without a parachute, hoping to be caught on the ground by a safety net. You've got a political figure insulting war heroes and their parents. What's the difference? One of these nutjobs has a safety net, and I don't think the Donald does.

There is never a dull moment with the Donald, so maybe that's why he should go back to reality TV where he belongs. Maybe he could pair up with Ozzy Osborne.