

Tacos For Everybody

I'm imagining an America with a taco stand on every corner. According to the Trump Latino specialist, Tio Tomas, that's what we'll have if we don't build a thirty foot impenetrable wall guarding us good God-fearing white folks from our neighbors to the South. One can only speculate what the Canadians might do in response. The Donald's dystopian future might include stands selling thick bacon and Molson beer right next to the Taco stands. On a related note, a taco stand on every corner in America is speculated to raise employment by nine and a half million people, so there is that.
