

Turkey Hash

Well the world is going nuts, and I'm absolutely sure that electing a nutty president will not be the solution.

French officials are saying that their truck assassin must have radicalized "quickly". Let's just go ahead and call B.S. on that one and move on the next big story, a semi-coup in Turkey. I have a neutral position on coups, I figure some are good, and some are bad. I do find this attempt amusing since it was a military coup and was so poorly planned. At one point the president's jet was in the air and the military had two F16's in the area. Seems like taking out the president should be objective number one of a coup.

Maybe not for the Turks.